It's very difficult to comment when all you have provided is an unsubstantiated list of costs and savings. What are you spending $4mil on? There is no description of what is being built or purchased. How are you going to have maintenance costs of only $700K over 65 years? How are you generating savings of $14mil and based on what experience. Has this been done before or is it something new you are trying for the first time? This is a completely useless presentation as it provides no information than can be examined or criticized other than to say the spreadsheet adds up and that the decision has already been made.
